

Mojave River Project is Frowned On By U.S. Agriculture Engineers

A PROPOSAL to divert water from the Mojave river for use on Orange county farm lands, did not appear so promising today. A report of a recent survey by the United States Department of Agriculture raised grave doubts in the minds of engineers as to its practicability. Lawyers saw in it the threat of endless litigation should Orange county ever consider the proposal seriously.

The Mojave was brought into the picture again recently by C. Roy Browning, an engineer for the James Irvine interests, in opposing the flood control and water conservation program which Orange county voters are to accept or reject at an election next Friday.

Harry F. Blaney, irrigation engineer, and Paul A. Ewing, irrigation economist, conducted the investigation, the result of which was made public here today for the first time.

IN A SUMMARY of the survey they declared "any diversion of the Mojave river water outside its watershed should be made only after care is taken of the normal agricultural, domestic, and industrial needs (including those of railroads) of the valley itself."

"The valley's rights should stand in the preferred position and outside claimants should be satisfied with what is left. Hence, provision should be made to protect the present water needs of the valley before the diversion elsewhere is begun in any year."

Whether or not the plan is feasible from either an economic or engineering standpoint has never been determined, according to the report.

"Plans for the transmountain diversion are as yet entirely on paper," a summary of the investigation stated. "Such as they are, they appear to indicate feasibility if judged solely on an engineering basis."

"HOWEVER, before being entered upon they should be supported by detailed surveys, including careful exploration of proposed reservoir and dam sites. The economic feasibility of the expenditures then estimated to be necessary should be adjudged on the basis of water costs carried at the time by water users in Santa Ana basin, taking into account such salvage requirements as may then exist."

Another angle touched upon by the report is the matter of adjudicating rights to the water with valley users. The probable impossibility of obtaining this adjudication was recognized by the report which stated:

"RECENT important court decisions have simplified the legal obstacles which heretofore have prevented transmountain diversions of Mojave river water, but the fact that the area claiming or in position to claim rights to it is much larger than the area which it could actually serve appears to recommend that an adjustment of the rights be obtained before any costly, large-scale development is undertaken."

The report stressed the fact that if an attempt were made to adjudicate rights to the water, all advantages, legal and those provided under the new state doctrine, would be with users in the Mojave valley.

Mr. Blaney and Mr. Ewing, in their report, pointed out that "There are no present legal obstacles in the way of a diversion by (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)"

President Stops in Santa Ana Late Today

ARRIVES 4:45 AT SANTA FE STATION

Roosevelt Expected to Be Here 5 Minutes, Make Short Talk

LEAVING L. A. 4 P. M.

Mayors of 13 Orange County Cities Will Bid Him Welcome

Santa Ana was to have its first chance to see President Roosevelt in person late today.

The President was to stop at 4:45 p. m. for five minutes, and will greet a crowd at the Santa Fe depot from the rear of his train.

Definite information that the national executive will stop here came early this afternoon to Horace Head, local Democratic leader, in a telegram from Santa Fe officials at Los Angeles.

Roping Off Space

Arrangements were made to rope off a small area at the end of the President's car, where the mayors of Orange county cities and newspapermen were to be admitted to hear the message which the President may bring.

It was expected that thousands of school children and adults were to gather at the station for a glimpse of President Roosevelt. He had been invited here to participate in dedication of the new city hall, but his plans made a longer stop impossible. His train was to leave Los Angeles at 4 p. m.

Original plans called for Mr. Roosevelt to motor from Los Angeles to Long Beach, thence to Santa Ana and San Diego. However, secret service men turned thumbs down on this itinerary because it would involve the President being on the highway at night, it was learned here today.

It also was learned that a loud speaker system was ordered installed at the CCC camp at Do-

The American actress, who married an Italian, Pepito Abbato, said:

"The Negro (Emperor Haile Selassie) is ready an enemy of the Negro race, for he maintains slavery, which Mussolini is determined to stamp out. If I need be, I am willing to recruit a Negro army to help Italy."

Mighty Structure Leaves Him 'Speechless'

President Roosevelt, wearing white hat and carrying cane, here is shown at Boulder dam just before he dedicated the huge structure. The dam, which is considered the world's greatest engineering feat, left the President "speechless," he said. President Roosevelt is expected to stop in Santa Ana late this afternoon on his way to San Diego.

WILL PRAISED BY F. D. R.

Beloved Humorist Was 'Old Friend,' Says Chief Executive

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1. (AP)—President Roosevelt, speaking in the Coliseum that was the site of the 1932 Olympic games, today paid tribute to what he termed the "liberal spirit" of California, and made tender reference to the death of his friend, Will Rogers.

"To the liberal spirit of this state our national program owes a great debt," said the President.

Skies Are Clearing

Mr. Roosevelt again expressed his belief that the economic skies are clearing.

"It is true, as shown not by the figures alone, but by the spirit of the great mass of Americans in every part of the country, that we have come through stormy seas into fair weather," he said. "Patience is receiving its reward. Faith is being justified. Hope is being fulfilled."

Praises Will Rogers

Referring to a previous visit here during the 1932 campaign he said that "on that occasion I was introduced by a very old friend of mine, a friend of every man, woman, and child in the United States, a kindly philosopher—one who would be with us today but for his untimely death in Alaska."

"Will Rogers' kindly humor saw facts and laughed at fantasy."

Thousands were gathered in the vast Coliseum long before the presidential party drove in from the west entrance.

Overcast skies gave promise of another sprinkling of rain.

Police, special officers, Legionnaires and Boy Scouts marshaled the throng into sections.

Students from Southern California university and other institutions were present in large numbers.

53 Millions Given Away

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Directors and large stockholders of corporations have given away about $53,000,000 worth of securities in the past six months.

About three-quarters of the $53,000,000 was given away after President Roosevelt had asked congress to increase gift taxes. If the gifts had been delayed until Jan. 1, 1936, when the new law becomes effective, recipients would have received about $1,000,000 less. This is because the present tax on the total amounts to about $5,000,000 as compared with $6,000,000 under the new law.

DAM TOUR IS TOMORROW

Citizens Are to View Site at Prado and Spreading Work

Orange county business men and other citizens tomorrow will inform themselves on the actual water situation confronting this section when they make a tour of the Prado reservoir site on the Santa Ana river and the Lytle creek spreading grounds above the Riverside Narrows on the river.

Arrangements to make the trip can still be made with chambers of commerce. The caterer, sponsored by the associated chambers of commerce, will leave Olive at 8 a. m.

A visit to the spreading grounds will show graphically one reason why Orange county is vitally interested in building a dam at Prado. Storm water is sunk at upper county spreading grounds, going into the underground basins. Orange county, in order to enforce a demand for its share of this water, must have a plate to store it, proponents of the water program have explained.

The tour will go first to the (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

BRYANT RAPS OPPOSITION

Declines to Aid Group Fighting Passage of Water Bonds

Did someone slip when he was compiling a list of names of persons who would consent to "front" for the opposition to Orange county's $13,194,000 flood control and water conservation project?

The general opinion today was that a serious slip had been made, after a copy of a letter to Everett A. White, one of the two known officers of the Associated Water Users of Orange county, was read to the board of supervisors.

The letter was signed by Ernest A. Bryant, jr., son of Mrs. Susanna Bixby Bryant, one of the staunchest supporters of the project.

Mr. Bryant declined an invitation to serve on the general committee of the Associated Water Users of Orange county and allow them to use his name for publicity in an attempt to defeat the $6,620,000 bond issue to be voted upon Friday.

A copy of the letter addressed to Mr. White and signed by Mr. Bryant follows:

"Your letter received asking me to serve on the general committee of the Associated Water Users of Orange county and to allow you to use my name for publicity on its behalf. I would under no circumstances allow the use of my name for the following reasons:

Mitchell, Lyon, Cotton And McAdoo Urge Local Ceremony

President Franklin D. Roosevelt may sign the federal grant of $6,574,000 for Orange county's flood control and water conservation project when his train stops in Santa Ana late today.

John C. Mitchell and LeRoy Lyon, representing the board of supervisors, spent today in Los Angeles arranging for the affixing of the President's signature to the grant which will end the first step of the fight for the $13,194,000 flood control project.

Returning from Washington, D. C., Sunday Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Lyon were called to Los Angeles last night by a telegram instructing them to meet a representative of Harry Hopkins, administrator of the Works Progress Administration, who flew to Glendale with Orange county's application.

The representative of Mr. Hopkins was scheduled to meet the Roosevelt party in Los Angeles today and obtain the promised Presidential signature on the application. He conferred with Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Lyon, Hamilton H. Cotton and Senator William McAdoo. Early this morning prior to joining the official party.

It was decided at the conference that Mr. Cotton and Senator McAdoo also confer with the President and request him to delay signing the application until the train bearing him to San Diego, arrives in Santa Ana.

GEN. JOHNSON JOINS F. D. R.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1. (AP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former national recovery administration chief and self-termed "best friend and severest critic" of the Roosevelt administration's New Deal, arrived here by airplane today.

He planned to join the President's party and continue to San Diego this afternoon. He is to make an address there tomorrow.

ITALY VISIONS ETHIOPIAN 'THREAT'

General Mobilization Of Africans Seen As 'Menace'

CONSULS EVACUATED

Officials Ordered Out of Territory; Tension Is Increasing

ROME, Oct. 1. (AP)—Ethiopia's impending general mobilization was described today in informed Italian quarters as a "menacing threat" of imminent war.

Officials asserted that the Italian army in East Africa had braced itself against a possible attack, but repeated that there had been no Italian advance across the Ethiopian border—which they insisted has never been defined.

They contended that Italian movements in East Africa were "protective."

Danger From Ethiopia

Danger of a sudden outbreak of war, they explained, would not come from the Italian side, but would come from Ethiopia where, they believed, loosely controlled tribesmen might swarm over the border.

Italian officials announced today that scouts had detected the presence of strong Ethiopian forces in the supposedly-evacuated areas near Italy's colonial frontiers.

Pickets Near Borders

Scoffing at reports that Italian airplanes were flying over Ethiopian territory, officials asserted that instead of Italian pickets "in some places reinforced by regular troops"—were in evidence near the boundaries.

ITALIAN OFFICIALS ORDERED FROM ETHIOPIA

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 1. (AP)—Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, Italian minister to Ethiopia, today ordered the five Italian consulates in Addis Ababa and Harar provinces to evacuate as quickly as possible.

The minister's order was issued as the result of the increasing tension between Italy and Ethiopia.

More than 20 Italian consular agents are still struggling in the interior of the empire to reach Addis Ababa, the Sudan, or the Italian colony of Eritrea.

Most of them are traveling on mule back or on foot, their progress hampered by heavy rains and mud-sodden roads.

Foreigners here believe that Emperor Haile Selassie will order a general mobilization of his forces Friday or Saturday.

Navin field, Detroit, has long been sold out for the game while officials predicted a sell-out at Wrigley Field, Chicago, by this evening. The teams play two games in Detroit and then move to Chicago to continue the battle.

15,000 FANS KEEP VIGIL

Chicago Cub Followers Stay Up All Night For Series Tickets

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. (AP)—A roar from 15,000 chilly baseball fans as ticket windows banged up today notified everyone within half a mile that Chicago's share of the world series cash was in collection.

In Detroit, where the Cubs and the Tigers were ready to start their world series struggle tomorrow, every seat in Navin field, home of the Tigers, had long since been sold out.

Policemen struggled to maintain order in thick, wobbling lines of shouting Chicago fans surging up to be the first to buy in the hope of getting preferred seats.

May Take Horse Car

At window four, the first man to shove his money through the wicket for a box seat drew one in box No. 1, in extreme right field, within easy reach of the diamond—by horse car.

He saw the man behind him get a seat in box No. 37, directly behind third base, within heckling distance of the pitcher's position. The first man went away talking to himself.

Park officials estimated the queues, almost circling Wrigley field, contained 10,000 fans by midnight, and 15,000 by mid-morning.

THREE UNITS HERE TO BE EVACUATED

School Board Moves to Erect Tent Houses For Classrooms

TO COST $400 EACH

Failure of $180,000 Bonds Results in Action Last Night

Immediate evacuation of three old Santa Ana High school buildings weakened by the earthquake of March, 1933, was ordered last night by the board of education.

Twenty temporary one-room tent classrooms, built of wood and canvas, are to be erected at once on the high school grounds to house the students until some definite plan can be worked out for construction of new, permanent buildings.

This action by the board was taken as the only course remaining following rejection by voters in Santa Ana High school district last Thursday of a proposed $180,000 bond issue to erect new buildings at the high school. The high school district had applied for a Public Works administration grant of $148,000 to aid in construction of the buildings.

The buildings to be evacuated are the administration, old science and shop structures.

The board's decision to close the structures was reached at a meeting marked by heated discussion centering about technicalities of the state law on the one hand and a desire to insure the safety of students on the other.

Rolla Hays, board member, who took the stand that he would rather have school dismissed entirely for a few days rather than have the students remain in the dangerously weakened structures any longer moved that immediate arrangements be made for purchase or construction of temporary tent buildings.

Cost $400 Each

The temporary class rooms proposed by the school board will be 24 feet square, constructed from wood and canvas, and will cost approximately $400 each. Present (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 2)

SANTA ANA HAS RAIN TRACE

October was ushered in today with a promise of rain. Last night big drops fell here, and today a misty drizzle filtered down through the skies.

At 1 p. m. there had not been enough rain to measure, however. Other cities in the county reported similar wet weather. The season's total here so far is .05 inches, exactly equal to the total at this time last year.

At Fullerton the total so far is .34 inches. Last year it was .22 at this time. The total at Newport Beach so far is .54 inches, compared to .55 inches last year.

Journal to Hold Daily Radio Party During World Series

To help those who can't be among the thousands who will watch the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs clash for the world series, The Journal tomorrow—and every day during the series—will hold a radio party in front of its offices at 117 E. Fifth street.

Everyone is invited to listen in to the game but those who wish seats are advised to bring them. Play starts at 10:30, Santa Ana time.

A huge box score, giving complete play-by-play records in readable form, will be kept for The Journal's audience by Assistant Sports Editor Paul Wright.

The Turner Radio Company has provided an 11-tube high fidelity Philco, Model 116-X. The new inclined sounding board on the Philco will make the announcer's voice clearly audible to all.

First editions of The Journal, carrying complete coverages and box scores of the game, will be on the streets shortly before 2 o'clock each afternoon.

Rotterdam Attempting To Back Down Off Reef Today

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 1. (AP) The 450 passengers and about 250 of the crew of the marooned liner Rotterdam came ashore today to the peace and hospitality of Jamaica.

They landed from the rescue ship Ariguaní shortly before 7 a. m. in happy frames of mind, apparently unperturbed by the interruption of their pleasure cruise on a coral reef at Morant Cays, 60 miles southeast of Kingston, early yesterday.

Passengers Aboard Most of the passengers were asleep when the vessel went aground and they remained aboard ship until 4:30 p. m. yesterday when their transfer to the Ariguaní began.

The Holland-America liner was said by the passengers to be high on a rock and battered by heavy seas.

Passengers told how Capt. J. Van Dulken, who is remaining aboard the Rotterdam with about 250 of the crew, and his officers comforted the passengers and inspired confidence in them.

The S. S. Midas is among a group of ships which are standing by the Rotterdam today as she tries to back down off the reef.

HURRICANE PASSES 100 MILES FROM BERMUDA HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 1. (AP) The meteorological bureau took down the storm warning today as the damaging hurricane of yesterday passed the island 100 miles northeast, leaving this area virtually unscathed.

No report was made today of the center of the storm, which last night achieved a steady velocity of 56 miles an hour with frequent gusts of 78 miles an hour.

Minus accurate reports of the storm's location, observers estimated it was about 300 miles northeast of Bermuda rapidly diminishing in intensity. They also doubted that it would menace trans-Atlantic steamers seriously.

DEATH ORDERED FOR SHERMAN

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 1. (AP)—A Yankee jury branded Newell P. Sherman a wife-murderer early today in a verdict dooming him to the electric chair.

The wife, victim of "an American Tragedy," whose rival was Esther Magill, machine shop co-worker of the choir-singing scout-master husband, was drowned from a canoe on Lake Singletary.

The jury deliberated more than nine hours. It accepted the state's charge that Sherman lured his wife, who could not swim, into a canoe for the first time in her life, overturned the frail craft, pushed her away when she tried to cling to him, and swam ashore.

MORE ABOUT SCHOOLS

Prior to the motion, Ridley Smith, board member, said he was not satisfied that the buildings are actually in such poor condition that students could not attend classes in them for a few weeks.

"They have been attending classes in them for two or three years now, so why be in such a rush to get them out," Mr. Smith asked. "In the first place, this is not the season for earthquakes. In the second place, no engineer or state inspector has actually condemned the buildings. It is true they have condemned certain portions of them, and those portions have been closed. But on the other hand, they have not condemned the buildings in their entirety. They have merely pronounced them unsafe for occupancy."

Smith Not Satisfied "This sort of program takes time, and I am not satisfied that the school board can legally condemn a building in the first place. Since we have allowed the students to remain in the buildings this long, what difference would a few weeks make? Furthermore, I am not convinced that we can be held responsible for injuries in case of another earthquake."

The board had carried along as far as it could, and that he, personally, was strongly in favor of evacuating the buildings immediately. Mr. Youel adhered to Mr. Hays' discussion of the question, and seconded his fellow board member's motion to start immediate construction of class-room shacks. City Councilman Ernest Layton, who said he was attending the board meeting in the capacity of an interested citizen, entered into the discussion of the housing problem. He asked if it were not possible to construct a system of braces for the walls of the damaged buildings which would make them safe for occupancy. Members of the board explained to him that the cost of such a program was prohibitive, pointing out that certain state requirements had to be met if such a plan were adopted. They told him that the cost of repairing the buildings would reach nearly 80 per cent of the cost for complete reconstruction.

Inspection Decided Her Dr. Margaret Baker told fellow board members that she was in doubt for some time concerning the advisability of any immediate action. Recently, she said, she had made an inspection of the high school plant and was satisfied in her own mind that the buildings absolutely were unsafe for occupancy.

"After looking over the remaining buildings, I have come to the conclusion that I would not blame any mother of high school children for not wanting them to attend classes in those buildings," Dr. Baker said.

Board members were told tonight that in the next issue of the high school newspaper, "The Generator," there would appear a series of editorials written by high school students in which they would demand that the school board take immediate action in ordering the buildings evacuated.

Crawford Outlines Plan Lynn Crawford, principal of the high school, outlined a temporary plan pending construction of the class room shacks. According to the plan, no classes will be held in the buildings which have been pronounced as unsafe for occupancy by state inspectors, namely, the administration building, the old science building and the shop building. Students will come to school from 8 a. m. until noon each day to receive assignments and make reports. The assignments and reports will be made in the newly constructed science building, in the gymnasium, in the Y. M. C. A. hut and in the cafeteria, Mr. Crawford said.

Students wishing to use books that are in the library will be given them through a window by two librarians stationed inside the building. Study periods will be done away with, and students will have to do their reading either at home or in their cars.

Mr. Crawford said he could have his plan ready for operation by tomorrow.

Wells Compromises George Wells, who at first objected to any plan for evacuation and razing of buildings on the grounds that the board lacked sufficient funds, finally agreed to a compromise motion which did not use the words "evacuation of buildings," but which did authorize an immediate plan for temporary shacks and the "devising of an immediate plan for temporary instruction of students to care for the emergency." He explained that although the board was acting in all good faith in adopting Mr. Hays' motion, he was afraid that the public would interpret the action in some other light.

When the question came up for a vote, Dr. Baker demanded a roll call on the question. Mr. Smith refused to vote, saying that since he had not been a member of the board at the time the original inspectors' reports had been made, he did not feel qualified to vote. "I refuse to vote on the matter," Mr. Smith said. "I was not a member of the board when the inspectors made their reports, and for that reason I may not have the same views on the subject as the other board mem-

BROTHER OF H. B. MAN IS MURDERED

AUBURN, Oct. 1. (AP)—John C. Weaver, who, it was reported to Sheriff Elmer Gum, shot and killed Berry Kesterson and wounded another man in a mountain feud, was captured this morning on the bank of the American river, only 200 yards away from the scene of the shooting yesterday.

A posse headed by Deputy Sheriffs Tom Stanley and Charles Dolce and Deputy District Attorney C. E. Tindall of Placer county found Weaver, badly wounded, propped against a rock. He had been shot yesterday by Andy Fennimore after he was reported to have emptied his shotgun into Mr. Kesterson's body.

The bullet from Mr. Fennimore's rifle had entered the right side of Weaver, and the wound was still bleeding when the posse found him. A few yards from Weaver, Stanley picked up Weaver's shotgun.

Tindall and Fennimore told of the capture of Weaver at Iowa Hill, a mining settlement about 30 miles from here, when they arrived with the body of Kesterson. The shooting of Mr. Kesterson was the result of a feud that arose over rights to mining claims. Previously three dynamite explosions, all attributed to the feud, occurred.

BROTHER OF H. B. MAN

Berry Kesterson, killed in a mountain feud yesterday near Auburn, Cal., was the brother of George E. Kesterson, well known Huntington Beach oil company official, it was learned today.

Accompanied by his wife, the Huntington Beach man left for Auburn immediately after receiving word of his brother's death.

ITALY DEPORTS AMERICAN BOY

ROME, Oct. 1. (AP)—A young man, identified by the police as James Donahue, cousin of Countess Barbara Hutton Mdivani Haugwitz-Reventlow, was deported from Italy Sunday night on grounds that he had cheered Ethiopia.

The young man was not arrested, but he was accompanied by two detectives to the border on Sunday night's Paris express train.

WOMEN VOTERS HEAR BOND TALKS HERE TONIGHT

The League of Women Voters will hear both sides of the county water program outlined at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Y. M. C. A. Ralph McFadden, Placentia, will talk in favor of the program and the bond issue for which an election has been called next Friday.

Cecil V. Robinson, Santa Ana, will talk on the other side. Mr. McFadden is a prominent rancher and former president of the farm bureau. Mr. Robinson is a chemist and geologist and has made a study of the water situation here.

STAATS BID HIGH ON SCHOOL BONDS

Nine bids for the $156,000 Fullerton elementary school bond issue were submitted to the board of supervisors today and referred to the county auditor for checking. The board indicated that the award would be made during the afternoon session.

It was indicated that the bid of William R. Staats and company probably would be the highest offer. That company bid a premium of $600.60 for the entire issue of 3 1/2 per cent bonds.

bers. In the first place, the board should have taken action in evacuating the buildings three years ago, instead of waiting until the present time." Without exception, the other board members agreed that the one big mistake that they had made was failing to order the buildings evacuated soon after the earthquake. They explained that such an action had not been taken for the reason that they felt at the time that they were saving the taxpayers money.

Riparian owners are limited to the watershed if they rely on their riparian rights. The new state doctrine, however, not only protects the actual reasonable beneficial use of the riparian, but also his prospective reasonable beneficial use; and a user of ground water underlying his land has a right correlative with other overlying land owners to make a reasonable use of the common underground supply. There is no general rule as to just what lowering of ground water constitutes an injury.

S. A. CHAMBER VOTES BOND SUPPORT

The Santa Ana chamber of commerce membership Monday afternoon endorsed the county water program on which the citizens will vote next Friday. The action was taken after a session at the Green Cat in which certain dams in the project were branded "political," and after one speaker told of his regret at the "abuses that have been heaped upon the board of supervisors" by opponents of the program.

The program was outlined first by Thomas Means, San Francisco engineer, who was on the consulting board for the former county water program. Mr. Means stressed the danger from floods, and said that "we are certain that some time a flood twice as great as that of 1916 will go down the Santa Ana river, when every acre of land and every life will be in danger."

Roy Browning, engineer for the Irvine company, suggested that the Trabuco and Aliso dams were included as "vote getters." Mr. Means replied that if that was the reason, the supervisors picked a mighty poor spot to get votes because there aren't many there. Supervisor W. C. Jerome said the Trabuco dam had been included after residents of that region requested it, citing former flood damage.

After a question by Mr. Browning, who asked if the taxpayers were going to pay for lunches furnished on a tour of the dam sites Wednesday, Edward M. Hall, Santa Ana rancher, arose and pointedly remarked that "I regret the abuses that have been heaped on the supervisors." He made an appeal for support of the bonds.

FIVE WRECKS INJURE 12 IN COUNTY

Five traffic accidents on Orange county's highways this week-end resulted in injury to 12 persons.

A three-car pile-up on highway 101 at the Southern Pacific crossing one and one-half miles north of the Orange county hospital Saturday night resulted in injury to Mrs. Rowena Smith, 70, of 1005 Hickory street, Santa Ana; Miss Alice Lopez, 12, of 1021 Logan street, Santa Ana, and Paul Holguin, 37, of 1929 Logan street. When A. V. Scott, 42, of 1529 East First street, Santa Ana, stopped his car in the second lane in the highway to wait for a truck to cross, his machine was struck from the rear by Mr. Holguin's car, which careened into a third machine driven by Mrs. Fay Smith, 30, of 1005 Hickory street, Santa Ana.

Car Hits Palisades Five persons narrowly escaped death at noon Sunday when a car driven by Thomas Warden Sierra Madre, crashed into the palisades at Doheny Park. Mr. Warden told officers he had dozed at the wheel. Mrs. Thomas Warden, Mrs. Edith Warden and son, Ray, and mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, all of Sierra Madre, suffered minor cuts and bruises. They were all rushed to San Juan Capistrano for medical treatment, and later allowed to return to their homes.

George Cordova, 26, El Modena, was taken to the Orange county hospital for first aid treatment Sunday morning after he had fallen asleep while driving his car on Tustin avenue near the Fourth street intersection. His machine went off the road and crashed into a telephone pole.

Motorcycle, Car Collide Roy Coffee, 30, Buena Park, suffered injuries Saturday morning when his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Harry M. Strathman, 22, of 325 South Claudia street, Anaheim. The accident occurred on Euclid avenue near its intersection with Manchester boulevard, west of Anaheim. Benton Schamblin, 27, Santa Ana, sustained severe cuts and bruises and possible fractured ribs at 2:20 a. m. Monday when he fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which crashed into a tree at the side of the road. The accident occurred on Prospect avenue near the Seventeenth street intersection.

CUPID RECORDS ANOTHER MARK

Dan Cupid hung up another record for September, according to the records of County Clerk J. M. Backs.

During the month just ended, Mr. Backs' figures reveal, there were 325 marriage licenses issued in Orange county, beating the mark set for September, 1934, when 313 licenses were issued.

The September licenses bring the total for this year, to date, to 3002, as compared to the 4092 issued during the entire year of 1934. Mr. Backs said he expects to see last year's total, which was larger than any since 1928, exceeded this year. Cupid still has three months in which to work.

MORE ABOUT BASEBALL

(Continued from Page 1) For their patience, they got strings of tickets for the three games to be played between the Cubs and the Tigers, Friday and Saturday, as well as Sunday if the fifth game is necessary. Box seats for the three games were $19.80, grand stand seats $16.50.

The waiting fans stood, sat, and even lay on the sidewalk wrapped in newspapers and all manner of garments. Bonfires built in buckets glowed here and there along the lines, and one or two gasoline stoves supplied coffee to all within reach.

MORE ABOUT BRYANT

(Continued from Page 4) bonds on Oct. 4 will insure the building of flood control projects which will establish a security of value for agricultural property which could in no other way be accomplished.

"Second: Without a dam in the Santa Ana canyon at the site designated under the Elliott plan, a flood could very possibly cause more damage than the cost of the proposed dam. Other dams as outlined in the Elliott plan furnish protection to all other parts of the county."

"Third: With the federal government making an outright grant of $6,374,000 collected in taxes throughout the United States, and with $6,620,000 in bonds issued by Orange county, about $13,000,000 will be spent mainly in Orange county. This will aid tremendously in solving the unemployment problem, and will in turn benefit all merchants of the county. Therefore, I do not see how a voter can afford to vote anything but 'yes' for the passage of the bonds."

BURGLAR SUSPECT HELD

Tom Williams, 22, Los Angeles, was in the county jail today, booked on charges of burglary. Williams was arrested in San Clemente Saturday by Chief of Police Tom Murphree. According to R. R. Lutes, investigator for the sheriff's office, Williams assertedly entered a room in the El Rey hotel in San Clemente and stole approximately $8 in cash.

Committees appointed for the district meeting which is to be held in Santa Ana in November, included Mrs. Hugh K. Hougham and Mrs. Marcus Lassiter, arrangements; Mrs. Harold Greenwald and Mrs. James Givens, hospitality, and Mrs. Floyd Mitchell and Mrs. James Hird, ushers.

The parental education study group will begin Oct. 30 in room 314 of the courthouse annex from 9 to 10 o'clock. Mrs. John J. Mills, president, said.

RELIEF DRIVE INCOMPLETE

Administration Starts On Final Month in Seeking Work

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—The administration drive to put 3,500,000 men on work relief by Nov. 1 turned into its final month today with the present status of the campaign undisclosed.

The last public statement, Sept. 19, showed $31,703 at work under the program. More recent figures were not available today at Works Progress administration headquarters.

Direct relief, known as the "Dole," had been abandoned in six states where the work relief program was most advanced. They were Indiana, Nevada, New Hampshire, Alabama, Wyoming and Vermont. But $61,000,000 was allocated for the other states for October, indicating that the work plan had a long way to go in them to absorb the burden.

Bookstore, were held at the Little Church of the Flowers at 3:30 p. m. yesterday. Mr. Brown passed away on Saturday. Burial was in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Mr. Brown went to Eagle Rock six years ago. Three years ago his wife passed away. He was laid to rest beside her. Mr. Robert Brown is the only Santa Ana survivor, other sons and daughters residing at Eagle Rock.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

EVERY day we learn something more of the exclusive California climate—how it aids us in setting different kinds of records, giving bigger and better sunburns and growing better oranges.

We hear how Mrs. Zilch's chilblains were entirely cured after a short time and how our local grapefruit are better than anyone else's.

Today we learned another. In ordinary climates, the fall season is one for harvesting crops. The grower toils through the spring and summer, preparing for his just reward as winter peeks around the corner. Since time began, this has been the case.

But in Anaheim, it's different. They're just starting to sow crops there, and from what we hear, they've started in a big way. But they're not raising corn, or peaches or artichokes—it's whiskeys.

FROM what we can learn, the males aren't mad at their wives—they're preparing for the annual Anaheim Halloween celebration. Apparently they're going to let 'em grow until after their affair and then have a late harvest.

Now don't start asking what good a crop of whiskeys will do the annual Halloween parade—we haven't found out yet, but we're going to conduct our own private investigation. Maybe they're going to whack 'em off and strew 'em in front of the queen, or something.

But, at any rate, they're bound to have one of the biggest and best crops of whiskeys in history—due, probably, to the sunshine.

IF THE practice is universal among men of the community we want to see Charlie Griffith, city clerk, with a full-grown beard. They'd better not let Mayor Mann enter into any such affair, however. Residents must remember that their mayor is to uphold the dignity of their town in the county horseshoe pitching contest pretty soon at Newport Beach. The mayor probably would be considerably handicapped by a flowing beard if he were pitching, so shoes, so they should insist upon a clean-shaven face, as far as he's concerned.

But it's bigger and better beards for the rest of 'em!

AT Huntington Beach we dropped in to see Will Gallienne at the C. of C. He was talking to Frank Bundy, who was in Santa Ana in 1890, or some such time, although he was so young that all he could remember was that it was hot.

Mr. Bundy told us lots of things about water—why Orange county needs more of it, and how Los Angeles faced the same situation quite some time ago. They got their water, he said. He added that it's about time we're doing likewise.

ALSO, we received quite a kick from the "Renfro Weekly," published in Jim Farquhar's paper at Huntington Beach. Jane Renfro, 13, is editor. She's well on the way to being a newspaper-woman already, having formed one habit which some of the rest of us have forgotten—the habit of brevity. For instance:

"Everyone seems to be glad to be back to school. The grammar school children have a new building which thrills them very much."

There's your entire story, in two sentences.

In the society section of her edition, Miss Renfro takes us to San Diego, in approved editorial fashion:

"Mrs. J. W. Renfro, the editor's grandmother, took the editor's father and mother to the San Diego fair Saturday. They were on the grounds about 6 hours. Everything was certainly interesting."

Then we jump back to the new schoolhouse, thusly:

"The 6-Ys are very thrilled with the view from their room. They can see the ocean, Memorial hall, court house, arches of the pier and the Methodist church among the tree tops."

She gives you the whole picture, in a few words.

We'd like to let her know that her weekly's appreciated. There's only one trouble—she's liable to end up writing a column.

WOULD seem that Clyde Simmons' idea about having a county-wide celebration of some kind each year has taken a temporary nosedive. Only temporary, however. It's too good just to let drop, and we're still betting that some organization or group will take the idea and make a good thing out of it.

The idea of an all-day event, with barbecue, old-fashioned dances, maybe a bunch of amateur horsemen like they had the other day at Buena Park, lots of music, and such things still seems to be a good one.

Just wait and see!

HUNTINGTON BEACH FIELD RELIEVED OF OIL CURTAILMENT

INCREASE IS ALLOWED BY STATE

Production Figure Raised
To 600,000 Barrels
In California

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Increased activity in the drilling program now under way in the old and new sections of the Huntington Beach oil field was expected today following announcement from the office of the state oil umpire that curtailment of production in major fields of the state is virtually at an end.

The move came as a surprise to the industry, although many fields have been operating at almost full capacity during the past few weeks. Action was taken after the fact-finding committee of the Oil Producer's agency reported findings during the period of curtailment since March, 1930, and announced that the time has come to produce more of the emergency curtailment committee of independent producers gave the Huntington Beach field an allotment of 46,190 barrels. Daily production for the field for the week ending Sept. 28 was 41,600 barrels, while a year ago producers were allowed to market only 38,000 barrels.

Output for the state in the past week reached a total of 632,750 barrels. Daily allotment for the state during September was set at 530,000 barrels. Major fields affected by the move will be Signal Hill, Santa Fe Springs, Venice, Alamitos Heights, Mountain View and the local area, it was announced, although an increase has also been granted other producing sections.

GAS TO HEAT WATER FOR THE FAMILY'S LAUNDRY COSTS LESS THAN A 3c BONE FOR THE PUP

Natural Gas to heat the many gallons of water needed for the weekly laundry costs very little—actually less than the puppy's meager bone.

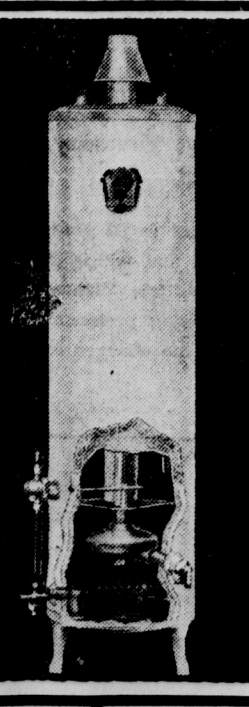

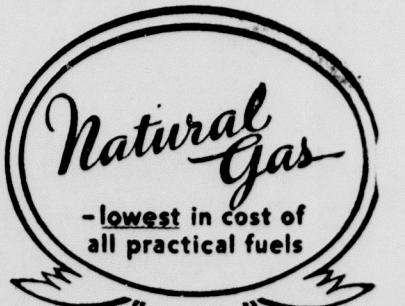

This economical service is due to the efficiency, as well as the low cost of Southern California's Natural Gas. It not only costs less per unit of heat than any other practical fuel, but it delivers its heat without needless delay for "warming up."

After you have drawn gallons and gallons of hot water for the laundry, the storage tank of an automatic gas heater reheats new supplies of cold water promptly for all other household needs.

Whether it be for water heating, cooking or house heating—Natural Gas is your most satisfactory fuel. It works quickly.

Until October 31st you can purchase automatic Gas water heaters on extremely moderate terms without down payment. Ask your dealer or Gas Company for details.

HISTORY LESSON ON THE WORLD'S SERIES

TODAY WE DUST OFF the records of the national pastime's extravaganza, the world's series.

A little research, a little private opinion—but most of all just an attempt to help both of us brush up our knowledge of the series since the Pittsburgh Nationals and the Boston Americans started the whole thing way back in 1903.

Although it has steadily grown until today it is generally regarded as American sportdom's greatest show, the world's series is not by far the million-dollar business the color attached to it would indicate.

So far, in 31 playoffs, attendance has totaled 5,675,114 and receipts have reached $17,598,891. When you realize that a couple of guys with overpadded gloves can draw upwards of a million dollars for a single battle in the squared circle these figures do not represent such a remarkable high water mark.

Not when the two teams are the best in the world, the players performing to the very top rung variety of baseball and the games numbering from four to seven in the best cities of these United States.

However, let it be said that baseball has condoned no skull-duggery; it takes no press agents along its road to glamour and is likely least influenced by the national betting syndicates of any form of major sport today.

Now for a few figures: Biggest attendance year in world's series history was 1926 when the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees lured a total of 328,051 fans into the two parks to see the upstart Cards dump the touted men of Gotham, four games to three in as wild a series as history books record. Paid admissions that year were $1,207,864.

MILLION DOLLAR GATES FEW AND FAMOUS

ASIDE FROM THAT series there have been but five other years in the 31 when total admissions reached the million dollar mark: 1923, 1924, 1925, 1931 and 1935. Last year's "pot" was $1,031,341—not including the $100,000 paid by the Ford Motor Co. for broadcast privileges. This year's chain of games should surpass that, with both Detroit and Chicago club owners having already seen the pleasant handwriting on the wall to the extent that they have had to enlarge their parks greatly for expected overflow crowds.

If they possibly can jam enough people into their respective diamonds, the all-time mark will be the 1921-22 series, provided, that is, the series doesn't prove as one-sided as we fear it will. We look for the Tigers to sweep the series—with five or six games the absolute limit.

Lon Warneke is the only Cub pitcher who can stop the Detroiters. With the possible exception, of course, of Bill Lee. But more of that in the post-mortems, starting day after tomorrow. Let's get back to the figures again.

The highest year for the world's series was in 1905—there were 11,723 turned out. The first year, 1903, however, gets the prize for the lowest gate—$50,000. With a few exceptions the "take" has been increasing year after year. Last year's crowd of 281,510 was the best since the record-setting year of 1926. In fact, in only four years has the mark been any better. Therefore, we say, look for a new mark this year.

ODDS AND ENDS IN BIG SERIES RECORDS

PICKING UP A FEW loose ends we stumble across the following miscellaneous marks:

Most hits in one game: New York Giants in 1921—20 valets. Most games: 19—by New York Americans (13), Chicago Nationals (6), 1932; by one club: New York Americans vs. Chicago Nationals, 13; tying marks made by Giants in 1921 and by Athletics in 1911.

Playing in most series: Babe Ruth, 10; next best, Frankie Frisch, 8; most games: Frisch, 50.

Highest average in single series: Ruth, .625, 1923.

Home runs in series, lifetime: Ruth, 15.

Struck out in series, lifetime: by Ruth, 30. (Paste that in your hat for an argument some time!)

Most home runs in a series were made in 1925—and Ruth was playing! Cuyler—the same who got the nod not long ago—Wright, Moore and Trayner of

TIGERS, CUBS RENEW OLD-TIME BATTLE

SZABO, DEAN SCORE DRAW IN FARCE

Crippled Main Events Unable to Continue; Other Bouts Good

By PAUL WRIGHT

The "main event" turned out to be the "main event" at the Orange County Athletic club's wrestling palace last night.

Keenly disappointing the gallery of 2000 mat addicts, the so-called feature of the evening between Man Mountain Dean and Sandor Szabo developed into a farce which Referee Bull Montana called a draw after two falls.

Both Are Crippled

So badly injured were the over-the-hill Georgian and the handsome Hungarian that neither was in condition to complete the three-falls to a finish struggle. Montana ruled, although Szabo remained in his corner in astonishment while his 317-pound rival climbed through the ropes and headed for the dressing rooms. Many fans could not believe that Szabo, despite an injury to his left arm and shoulder, was unable to continue the match.

Dean applied a left armlock to capture the first fall in 14 min. 20 secs., and was twisting Szabo's left arm nearly off again in the second fall when the hustling Hungarian, like a human volcano, exploded on the Man Mountain with an overhead, backward body slam that floored the bewhiskered hill-billy in 1 min. 40 secs.

Apparently stunned by the blow, the Man Mountain sprawled out on the mat for nearly three minutes while Mama Dean—who almost caused a riot last week when she attacked Ivan Managoff—entered the ring and helped bring her papa to his senses. Szabo, moaning over a badly-twisted arm, leaned in his corner while Dean struggled to the floor and walked through the ropes.

Outside of the lightning body slam by Szabo, and the great pressure Dean applied to the Hungarian's left arm, action was conspicuous by its absence. The balloon-sized hill-billy did not attempt destructive broad jump a single time.

The supporting bouts were brief and highly entertaining.

Bigano Beats Carone

Fred (Dirty) Carone, Boston eye-gouger, went 26 min. 40 secs. before losing to Al Bigano, ex-Fordham football star, on a quickly-applied Irish whip. Carone had the entire audience riding him before the match was seconds old, and his dirty tactics almost caused several irate fans to climb into the ring after him.

Hans Steinke, the popular German, substituted for Larry Dean of Oregon State, and floored Tony Folio, the face-making Italian, in 8 min. 38 secs. with a body slam. The rugged Steinke almost knocked the curl out of Folio's hair while jarring him all over the square.

A beautiful flying full Nelson gave Casey Hazanjan, former Stanford athlete, a decision over Hugo Chapman after 19 min. 15 secs. of grappling. Hugo applied an array of holds, and had Casey yelling loudly more than once.

The Pittsburgh Pirates each got one and Joe Harris, Goose Goslin got three each while the Washington Senator teammate Judge and Peckinpaugh got one each.

Longest game: 14 innings, between Boston Americans and Brooklyn Nationals, 1-0, in 1916. Shutout victories: Scored by American leaguers, 12; by Nationals, 23.

Couple of Freaks

WIND UP THE LESSON JUST TO WIND UP the session, take a look at a couple of freaks:

Every game of the five-game series of 1905 between the Philadelphia Americans and the New York Nationals ended in a shut-out. The Giants blanked the Phillies four times and Philadelphia goose-egged N. Y. in the other contest.

Going to bat in the seventh with the score 8 to 0 against them in 1929, the Philadelphia Athletics started a bombardment that netted them 10 runs and enabled them to lick Charley Root (he'll be in this series) and the Chicago Cubs.

Chicago Has Big Four Hurling Staff All Capable of Pitching Entire Game

By DICK STROBEL

CHICAGO, Oct. 1 (AP)—These are happy days for the loquacious one of the Chicago Cubs—Catcher Gabby Hartnett.

Beneath his barrel-like chest a heart surges with joy, contemplating the prospect of engaging the Detroit Tigers in the world series starting tomorrow.

More gold is not the motivating force. His delight comes from the fact he has four starting pitchers, all capable of going the full route.

To appreciate the full extent of Gabby's unrestrained glee, it must be borne in mind that such a situation, especially for the renowned Mr. Hartnett, is unique.

Too often has he watched some well-intentioned pitcher driven to the showers. Therefore, when he considers Lon Warneke, Larry French, Bill Lee and Charley Root, his happiness knows no bounds.

They Start and Finish

Each has contributed his share to the stretch drive that carried the Cubs to the top of the National league. Together they established something of a record by starting, finishing and winning 14 out of 15 straight games. The Cubs won the odd game, too.

Warneke, the Arkansas sphinx, is the ace of the pitching regiment, the donor of a score of victories to the Cubs' cause.

Despite the loss of ten pitchers during the 1935 campaign, Warneke toiled his full share of games. Unflustered on the mound, although occasionally temperamental elsewhere, he likes it when the going is tough. His fast ball, change of pace, and control are the factors responsible for his success.

CHARLIE GRIMM
They call him 'The Grimm Reaper.'

One Southpaw in 'Big 4'

Of the Cubs' big four, only Larry French is a left-hander. His current fortune on the mound is the best he has enjoyed in years, and the Cub management regards him as 50 per cent better when he worked for Pittsburgh.

The biggest surprise in the pitching department is the veteran Charley Root, whose exhibitions this year are rivaled only by his 1929 successes.

Root Is Back in Form

Root was too much of a good thing in those days, and he was sadly overworked the next three years. Given the rest he required in 1933 and 1934 he blossomed out this year in his old form, much to the delight of all concerned with the pennant aspirations of the Cubs.

Equally as gratifying has been the performance of Bill Lee in his second year with the Cubs. Youngest in point of service, he possesses, in Hartnett's opinion, one of the best curves in the game. His fast ball and control have stood the test of big-time competition, and in any engagement he will be as valuable as the next.

They're Unlucky, Too

It was only natural that with all this good fortune, the Cubs should experience some compensating bad luck, which manifested itself in the disappointing showing of Tex Carleton.

When the season started, Carleton was billed as a starting pitcher. Then Carleton was hit most profusely. Promptly he became a relief pitcher. In that capacity he has been a valuable adjunct.

The rest of the relief load has been, with some exceptions, the burden of Roy Henshaw, a southpaw. His inclinations, toward wildness have prevented him from becoming the first rate pitcher the Cub bosses believe he some day will be.

RING TOURNEY DONS PREP FOR TROBABLE ELEVEN; HARNOIS BACK PLANNED BY SAMPSON

Orange county will have its first "Golden Gloves" tournament if present plans of Promoter Sam Sampson of the Orange County Athletic club are carried out.

Sampson plans to start the "Orange County Golden Gloves" later this month and continue with the elimination until the opening of the Southern California tourney, he announced today.

Two of the greatest amateur bantamweights hereabouts—Lupe Cardoza of Ontario and Henry Gutierrez, recent conqueror of the National A. A. U. bantamweight champion, Johnny Aguirre—clash in the fourth round feature with two other pair of 118 pounders—Jimmy Merced vs. Al Serrano and Johnny Chavez vs. Tony Lario—slated to box in supporting numbers. The feathers produce Anaheim's contender, Don Bender vs. Frenchy Jure and Baby Rosales of Placentia vs. Bernie White of San Bernardino. Lightweight Paul Saucedo and Bill White mix, with Tino Munos battling Bud Soady in a middleweight affair. The flyweight scrap shows the colorful Mexican southpaw, Paddy Quillen, against the tough Chief Lopez of El Modena.

Brushing up his charges for their non-conference "death" struggle with U. S. C. freshmen here Friday night, Coach Bill Cook sent the Dons through a light workout at the Municipal bowl yesterday.

Paul Hurley, 190-pound guard from Joy, Okla., reported in suit, but decided after the drill not to enroll because he was so far behind the other linemen.

Fullback Walt Hickman, all-conference sophomore, may return to his old position at inside half, and Letterman Dick Moore may be promoted to fullback in the first backfield combination for the Dons' next start. Joe Herbert, Fullerton star, and Oliver McCarter, Orange flash, remain at quarterback and John Lehnhardt, rangy Garden Grove, at outside half. Blond Al Lamb, effective blocker, will be stationed at inside half when Hickman is at full.

Bruce Harnois, one of the club's best safeties last season, was in suit for a brief workout but a torn ligament in his knee will prevent his reporting for regular duty until next week.

KEY READY FOR OREGON STATE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1 (AP)—Ted Key, Texas' fullback gift to the University of California at Los Angeles, probably will be able to start in the Bruin lineup against Oregon State at Portland next Saturday, training reports indicate today. The 190-pound star ball carrier has returned to practice, apparently fully recovered from a neck injury.

BOB GRAYSON INJURED; OUT

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 1 (AP)—Striking where it would do Stanford the most harm, the injury jinx brought frowns to the face of football coach, "Tiny" Thornhill today.

Bobby Grayson, all-American fullback, who was injured in Saturday's game against San Jose State, will be on the bench for two weeks with a severely sprained ankle, doctors said. Left Halfback Bob Hamilton and Guard Woody Adams are also nursing less serious ankle injuries.

Y. M. C. A. COURT PLANS AIRED

Final plans for the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A.'s two-league basketball season, tentatively slated to open two weeks from Monday, will be formulated in a meeting of players and managers at the Y. M. C. A., 7:30 o'clock tonight.

New applications for franchises will be considered. Four vacancies remain—two in each of the Church and Commercial leagues.

Teams definitely entered in the Church loop are the Latter Day Saints (Mormons), First Christians, St. Peter's Lutheran and M. E. South. The Woolen Mills, Union Oil, Shell Oil and Costa Mesa Food basket have been accepted for play in the Commercial league. Six teams will be sponsored in each circuit.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

CHICAGO—George Engel, 150, Plymouth, Ind., outpointed Bob La Monte, 150, Chicago (8). SAN FRANCISCO—Ray Actis, 163, San Francisco, stopped Chuck Heffner, 171, Denver (8). OGDEN, Utah—Pete Blanchard, 140, Kansas City, knocked out Wayne (Young) Shipkey, 140, Ogden (1).

Starts For Cubs

WARNEKE
Lon Warneke, slender "pride of the Ozarks," gets the starting assignment for Chicago's Cubs tomorrow when the world series opens at Navin field, Detroit.

OILERS, REDS PLAY AGAIN

Five months of lively nightball competition probably will be climaxed at Huntington Beach tonight.

The National league champion Oilers, leading three games to none, plan to clean sweep their play-off series with Colton of the American league, and thereby annex the Southern California crown before the home folk. The teams are scheduled to take the field at 8:15.

Secretary Oscar Reichow of the Los Angeles Angels, runners-up for the Pacific Coast league pennant, today called off his club's three-game softball series with the Oilers which was to have begun Thursday. Hard ball does not mix with the softball variety, Reichow has decided.

Manager Joe Rodgers has stated emphatically that his men do not want to make another of the long jaunts to Colton to play before a crowd of around 200. He will send his Russian strong-boy, Louie Neva, to the mound in an effort to close the books tonight. Venn Botts or Vince Alexander will burn 'em over for Hubert Finlay's Reds.

ROWE, WARNEKE SLATED FOR DUTIES TOMORROW

By EDWARD J. NEIL

DETROIT, Oct. 1 (AP)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, the tall tower of Arkansas, burning them in against lean Lon Warneke, pride of the Ozarks; scrappy Mickey Cochrane master-minding against happy Charley Grimm—it's a far cry back to the Tigers of Hughie Jennings and Ty Cobb, the Cubs of Frank Chance, Johnny Evers, Joe Tinker and the great three-fingered Mordecai Brown.

They pick up again tomorrow, these modern 1935 models, where the legendary Tigers and Cubs of 1907 and 1908 left off their world series battling just 27 years ago.

Tearing off on the green of Navin field for the first of two games here, they paint by contract a brilliant picture of the changes that have come over baseball and its annual fall extravaganza in the course of the last quarter-century.

There will be, in all probability, some 48,700 semi-hysterical faithful, all the park will hold, in the half acre of temporary bleacher seats, the double-decked stands that mark the capitol of the baseball, if not the entire sport world, at the moment. Yet the total attendance in 1908, when the Cubs won in five games, was only 62,232.

Nears $1,000,000

It's almost certain to hit the $1,000,000 mark again, following the example another great Detroit pride, Joe Louis, set in the Yankee stadium in New York a week ago with Max Baer, hapless party of the second prize fighting part. This million-dollar gate will net the winning players better than $5000 each, the losers more than $3000 apiece, yet the Cubs of 1908 drew down only $1317 in each for the victors' share and the Tigers had to be content with a paltry $870, almost as much as an athlete wants today for use of his name by a ghost writer.

Old timers, through the blur of excitement and the new enthusiasm, might see out there the infield of the 1907 Cubs who beat the Tigers four times and tied once and licked them four out of five in 1908. There was the peerless Chance of that day at first, Johnny Evers playing second and Harry Steinfield at third, with Joe Tinker at short to compare with the Cubs of this day—Phil Cavaretta, a sensational youngster, at first, Billy Herman, Bill Jurges and young Stanley Hack.

In big Gabby Hartnett's place behind the plate in this series played the great Johnny Kling in the old days, and he caught three fingered Brown, Ed Reulbach, and Orval Overall, where Gabby muffles the slants of Warneke, the veteran Charley Root, Bill Lee and the southpaw Larry French.

Memories of Ty Cobb

On the Tiger side is the dim picture of the immortal Ty Cobb, clouting Sam Crawford, Davey Jones, playing the outfield that belongs today to Pete Fox, Jo Jo White, and ancient Goose Goslin, or Wild Bill Donovan, plugging in the Schoolboy's place, with the Indian Eddie Summers in reserve. In many an old timer's eyes there will be phantoms of Claude Rossman at first base, tough old German Schaefer at second, Bill Coughlin at third and Charley O'Leary roaming about shortstop.

New Issues Reach Tops For Year; Van Sweringen Notes Extended

By VIKTOR EUBANK
NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (AP)—Financial markets started the new month today with a show of confidence mixed with caution.

An early advance in stocks was led by automotive issues and selected specialties. Profit taking appeared later.

New tops for the year were registered by General Motors, Murray Corporation, Bullard Co., and Glidden with advances of fractions to a point. Other gainers of as much included Chrysler, Electric Auto-Lite, Houdaille-Hershey, Auburn, U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Case, Consolidated Gas, Johns-Manville, New Haven common and preferred, and Western Union.

Holders of more than 51 percent of about $15,000,000 Nickel Plate notes maturing today, it was learned, have agreed to an extension for three years. The Nickel Plate is a Van Sweringen property.

Wall street read the President's Boulder dam speech with interest. Utility factions, which apparently had braced themselves for another attack, seemed pleasantly surprised at the mild tone of the chief executive's statements.

FLOOD COSTS OLD HOSPITAL TO BE RAZED SHOWN BY KELLOGG

Present Program Would Be Cheaper Than New Deluge, He Says

A complete and comprehensive flood control program now would cost Orange county $6,620,000 in 40-year bonds, with the federal government putting up a gift of $6,574,000. But if you wait until another 1916 or 1884 flood, the estimated damage will be greater than the present cost of flood control. And will we not then be in a state of mind to spend another $6,000,000 or $10,000,000 for what we should do today?

George Kellogg, Yorba Linda, president of the associated chambers of commerce and chairman of the flood control committee of the Orange county council of the American Legion, thus summed up the water and flood control problem that exists today in a talk over radio station KREG last night.

Recalls 1934 Tragedy

It has been asked if the spreading works in the upper counties, coupled with embankment work on the Santa Ana river in Orange county, would not handle another 1916 flood, Mr. Kellogg said. He answered the question by showing that all these works could handle a minimum flow of 12,000 second feet of water, while the 1916 flood amounted to more than three times that amount, or 42,000 second feet.

Mr. Kellogg recalled the loss of life and property in the Montrose section on New Year's day, 1934. He showed how later the people were criticized for building homes in a natural water course. He then asked, "Did you ever stop to think that the old course of the Santa Ana river was between Anaheim and Fullerton, emptying into the San Gabriel river near Alamitos bay?" And that the big flood of 1884, when nearly twice the 1916 rainfall was recorded, changed the course of the river to its present stream bed? And here I repeat—that the present stream bed is now 47 feet above the level of the city of Anaheim.

"If we had another 1916 or 1884 flood, would we again sit in our warm and sheltered homes and comment on certain people's foolishness or other people's knavishness, or would we accept part of that blame on our shoulders, should the flood control bonds fail to carry by the necessary two-thirds majority on Friday, Oct. 4?"

Mr. Kellogg recalled how the Montrose American Legion post in 1934 turned its hall into a hospital, and that the flood engulfed the hall and took to their graves both those who were being aided and those who were giving aid.

JAIL DRUNK DRIVERS
Three men, convicted in Anaheim justice court on charges of drunk driving, yesterday commenced sentences in the Orange county jail in lieu of the payment of fines. Those sentenced were Frank Pyatt, 21, of 425 West Washington avenue, Santa Ana, $100 or 50 days; Arthur Prevencio, 24, 313 West Santa Ana street, Anaheim, $150 or 75 days; and Benjamin Cantu, 26, Azusa, $150 or 75 days.

OLD HOSPITAL TO BE RAZED Structure Opened In 1902

The old Santa Ana hospital building that for the past 34 years has been standing on East Washington avenue near the Southern Pacific tracks, is soon to be torn down. The old building, erected at a cost of $6000, originally contained 12 rooms. It was opened to receive patients on March 4, 1902, and the first patient was a surgical case.

Less than two years later, it became apparent that the accommodations were inadequate, and a meeting of the board of directors was called for the purpose of increasing the capital stock to $20,000. The original board of directors of the Santa Ana Hospital association consisted of Dr. J. M. Lacy, president; Dr. W. B. Wood, secretary; Dr. C. B. Ball, treasurer. Other members of the board were Doctors R. A. Cushman, E. M. Freeman, J. R. Medlock, F. M. Bruner, J. G. Bernicke, John L.

Dryer and John Wehrly. The superintendent of nurses was Miss Annie Hill.

About 1919 it became necessary again to increase the accommodations of the hospital, and the capital stock once more was increased. From the original capacity of 12, the number of accommodations had reached 40 when the World war came. Many of the physicians and nurses on the hospital staff enlisted, and the hospital nearly closed as a result.

Increasing difficulties later made it necessary for the original hospital group to disincorporate. All of the association's assets and liabilities were transferred to the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

During the latter part of 1926, a new and modern hospital building was constructed facing Washington avenue. The old hospital building was used as a dormitory for the nurses. There are no plans at present for the construction of a new building to take its place.

ADMITS PART IN SETTING FATAL FIRE

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. (AP)—Assistant State's Attorney Marshall V. Kearney said today that Frank Vitale, grocery proprietor, had confessed he had a part in a plot to set fire to the store, on the first floor of a tenement building, with a resultant loss of 10 lives. Kearney said that Vitale accused Joseph Di Chiari, 31, alias Mateo, of setting the fire early yesterday with three five-gallon cans of either gasoline or naphtha. Di Chiari denied the accusation after three hours of questioning.

Eight others were being detained for questioning.

moving hungrily over her face. She couldn't speak; she could only cling to him, and feel the rough, unsteady beat of his heart. They sat close together on a couch, while Emily asked eager questions that David answered; about the plantation, his father and mother, the puppies, the horses. Then twilight fell, and Judith came in from laboratory, bringing with her light and gaiety and a smell of sulphuric acid.

"How on earth," Emily asked when the greetings were over, "did you know where to find us? I was just going out to phone you." Judith grinned impishly. "I couldn't have helped knowing; they've just issued a grapevine extra about it. Rumor has it that David hypnotized Dr. Markham to get her consent to this. Everything," she told him with affectionate sarcasm, "seems to be grist that comes to your mill. There ought to be a law against you."

They went into dinner soon after that, and David was the focus of a hundred pairs of eyes. He seemed quite unaware of the attention, but Emily and Judith glowed with a reflected glory. He left next morning, promising to be back very soon, and the days after that were merely days, with 24 interminable hours apiece. Commencement. The campus was crowded with parents, radiant with pride for their daughters' achievements; with seniors, radiant with pride for their parents. There were innumerable festivities, in which freshmen had no part. Judith, who had a hearty contempt for pageantry and traditional observances, decided to go home.

"Exams are over tomorrow," she announced, "and there are plenty of doting parents to sit around and dote, so I'll never be missed."

"Then I might as well go too," Emily decided. School without Judith had no charms whatever. "I wish you would come up home for a while first. After you get to Carrollton you'll never tear yourself away."

"I wish I could." That was inaccurate; whatever Judith wished, she could. She confessed at last, "To tell you the truth, I'm homesick. Why can't you come home with me?"

The prospect was alluring. "I'm afraid I can't. Mother's such a stickler for rules that she'll never let me come again until you've been up home."

"In that case I'll be there as soon as I've run home and kissed the family. Then you can come back with me."

They spent the afternoon pack-

COUNTY'S CCC JAMES IRVINE'S STAND ON QUOTA IS 115 FLOOD PLAN AGAIN AIRED

Orange county will have a quota of 115 for enrollment in the Citizens' Conservation corps camps during October. The quota was received yesterday by Terrence Halloran, local director for the State Emergency Relief administration.

Age limits have been changed so that men between the ages of 17 and 28 are eligible. The former minimum age was 18. In the case of the family of a man in a CCC camp has another member employed by the Works Progress administration, there will be no reduction in his pay as a result of the CCC camp membership, Mr. Halloran said.

Applications for CCC camp enrollment may be made at the SERA offices here. Men accepted will be sent to March Field, from where they will be assigned to camps. The quota of 115 for Orange county will be for the next three-month period.

In 1929 the voters defeated a $18,000,000 water program in which dam was proposed at a lower site on the Santa Ana river.

"Remember this date—June 24, 1929," said Mr. Kellogg. "Under date of Nov., 1934, Mr. Irvine wrote to the chairman of the water committee of a dam at the upper Prado site, for flood control and water conservation. The Irvine company, James Irvine, president."

"No," Emily agreed. "And besides, you've promised to come back right away."

"I have. And we Carrolls keep our promises or die!" She stopped and kissed Emily quickly, and the crowd engulfed her. The station was suddenly drab and smoky and sordid.

The position of James Irvine on the county water program was brought into the limelight again today as a result of a talk over radio station KREG last night by George Kellogg, president of the associated chambers of commerce.

"There is information," said Mr. Kellogg, "that the Irvine interests are opposed to this flood control and water conservation project. Yet, on June 24, 1929, there was a full page advertisement in the Santa Ana Register as follows:

"To the voters of Orange county: A final word and definite promise should the present flood control bond issue be defeated at the polls tomorrow. We pledge our hearty cooperation to the citizens of Orange county for the construction of a dam at the upper Prado site, for flood control and water conservation. The Irvine company, James Irvine, president."

United States government will pay for the cost of the project." Yesterday at a meeting in the Green Cat cafe, Brad Hellis of the Irvine company said he was preparing a statement of Mr. Irvine's position on the water program. He and Roy Browning, Irvine company engineer, said Mr. Irvine favors the upper Prado site but that he does not endorse other features of the county water program.

Mr. Browning at yesterday's meeting suggested that banks of the Santa Ana river might be covered with cement or granite to carry flood waters. In commenting on this point at the same meeting, Mr. Kellogg said:

"I am surprised at Mr. Browning advocating banks to force water into the ocean when he knows that Mr. Irvine has filed suit against the upper counties spreading water and that Orange county can't store its share of this water without a dam."

CALIFORNIA HAS 13 PCT. OF FHA BUSINESS

California accounts for 13 per cent of the business done by the Federal Housing administration in the United States, it was shown in figures released today. Up to July 27 a total of 24,350 loans for modernization of homes had been made, the amounts of the loans aggregating $9,350,000. The total of commitments for financing new construction and refinancing existing construction was $8,217,782.

These figures were made public through the better housing office here by Col. William H. Evans, Southern California supervisor for the FHA. He also said that revised regulations for modernization loans, permitting a maximum of $50,000, is expected to stimulate building and the durable goods industries.

4 OBSTACLES NOW FACING RAIL KINGS

Need Approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission Yet

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (AP)—With controlling securities of their gigantic railroad network in their pockets, the Van Sweringens brothers of Cleveland steamed off on another phase of their rail career today.

With the aid of George A. Tomlinson, Cleveland steamship operator, and George A. Ball, Indiana glass jar manufacturer, the Van Sweringens bought at open auction stocks and bonds which they had put up as collateral for loans which, with back interest, totaled about $50,000,000.

Lost $45,297,000 The collateral was placed on the block by a banking group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. The bankers realized about $4,703,000 and suffered a loss of approximately $45,297,000. The brunt of the loss, it was said in Wall street, was borne by the Morgan firm.

Now that the Van Sweringens have bought back the collateral, they must surmount four obstacles, rail men declared. First: They are confronted with pending receiverships of two of the units of their rail domain, the Missouri Pacific and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois.

Second: They must gain the approval of the interstate commerce commission to the ownership and management of their roads by the newly organized holding company, Mid-America Corp., their legal instrument.

Third: The senate railroad investigating committee might scrutinize the sale, some thought.

Fourth: Minority groups of security holders might offer resistance, judging by the complaint of the chairman of a minority security holders committee of the Missouri Pacific.

TEXT OF WATER LETTER TOLD BY IRRIGATION FIRM

Today stockholders in the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company were to receive letters supporting the county water program and the bond issue on which the voters will express themselves next Friday. C. A. Palmer, member of the S. A. V. I. board of directors, today made public the text of the letter sent out.

It reads as follows: "The board of directors of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company believe that the flood control and water conservation plans to be voted on Oct. 4 are for the best interests of our company for the following reasons:

"Water levels in all our wells have substantially lowered and the cost of pumping has correspondingly increased.

"We pump approximately 75 per cent of all our water used in the summer season. We are satisfied that our exclusive water rights in the Santa Ana river are protected if a dam is built."

Eastern Star chapters of 57th district paid their homage to Inice Orton of Huntington Beach, district deputy matron, last night at a reception in the Masonic temple in Santa Ana, with Seaside chapter, Huntington Beach, acting as hostess.

Marshals for the evening were Mrs. David Todd of Huntington Beach and Mrs. Joe Herschler. Oscar Wright of Huntington Beach served as master of ceremonies.

Welcome to the reception was extended by Mary Ziegler and Clarence Orton, worthy matron and patron, respectively, of the Seaside chapter.

Worthy matrons and patrons from the advance escort with Dolly Dimmitt and Dode Hunter of Santa Ana chapter, Lillian Edwards and Robert Brown of Orange, Ethel Schauer and Ernest Shrewsbury and Dan Grant of Laguna, William Holmes of San Clemente, and Vera Jacoby and Dr. Cassius Paul of Hermosa chapter, Santa Ana, in the file.

District Officers Present More than 100 officers of the district followed their leaders in double file, standing at attention, while the Commandery in full dress made an arch of crossed swords under direction of J. A. Tarpley.

Through the arch, Mrs. Orton in a gold lace dress, carrying a fan corsage of tulle, roses, gardenias, and delphinium, made her entrance from the reception room. Compliments to the deputy were expressed by Mayor Fred Rowland of the Commandery.

The march of the Commandery was accompanied by Miss Mame Havens at the piano.

Grand officers of 1935 who were escorted to the east included Winnie Dean, Edith Kasper, Bernice Edwell, Vivian Brown, Elsie Voorman, Emma Mooney, Ruth de Buxton, Helen Miller and Cora Lewis. An escort of worthy matrons and patrons of 1935 of visiting districts, past matrons and patrons of Seaside chapter, and past matrons and patrons of 1933, the deputy's year as matron, concluded the presentation of honored guests.

Gifts were presented by Elsie Voorman for the grand officers, by Mary Wilkinson of Los Angeles for the officers of the 57th district, by Mable Doig for the 1933 matrons, and by Laura Nelson of Long Beach from that association.

Program Given Helen Edwards of Fullerton dedicated a vocal solo to the honoree. She was accompanied by Faith Henderson. Stanley Kurtz, accompanied by Mrs. Kurtz, sang two Irish numbers, following with the dedication of "I Pass by Your Window" to Mrs. Orton. Betty Jane Moore of the Visel studio gave a reading.

On the reception committee were Mesdames Jennie Ship, Marion Wallace, Edna Chapman, Mable Doig, Luella Brown, Helen Lewis, Elsie Gillogly, Marie Thurston, Ellen Shork, Clara Shook and Thelma Vanderleek, and William McConnell, Ray Spaulgh, Ralph Thurman, Jim Lewis, Lynn Shrewsbury and Arthur Reese.

Refreshments were served in the banquet room at tables centered with cornucopia filled with the season's fruits.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women.

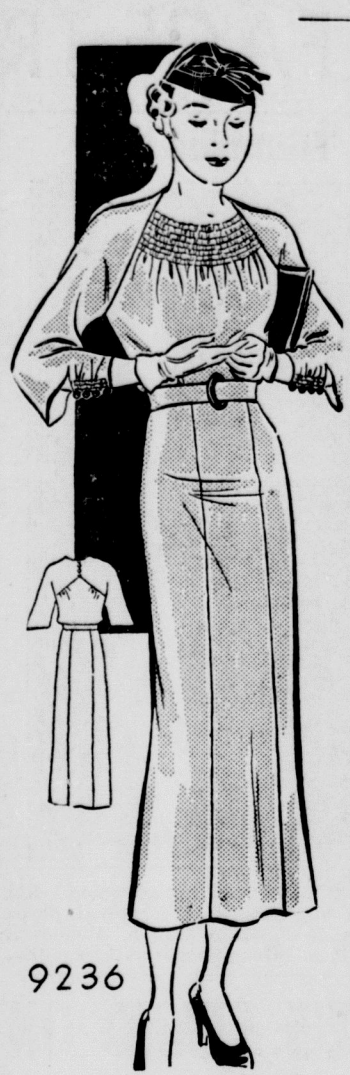

What do you think of night school for adults? Mrs. Pearl Adams: I think it's very valuable. It affords a chance for a lot of people who have not had many opportunities in education to obtain what they missed out on, earlier in life. Then too, it offers something new for those who have completed their youthful education. We all need an outside interest to keep us interested with home life and to keep us interested in our families. Mrs. J. W. McCain: I think everyone should in some way similar to night school keep up with the times. Even though an individual has had a complete education as a young person, times change and new ideas are developed, so that adult studies are very valuable. Mrs. L. E. Wilson: I very heartily favor the night school opportunities for adults. It affords them an opportunity to increase their knowledge and keep posted on things generally.

She Wears Gardenias Miss Tadlock wore royal violet satin and a spray of gardenias from her fiancé. Mrs. Carroll Ault, in rich brown silk, and Miss Marie McGinnis in deep red velvet, presided at either end of the tea table. Assisting them were Mrs. Stanley Clem, who wore emerald green lace over satin.

Honor Group Plans For Reception

Meeting yesterday noon on the campus, Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college scholastic honor society elected officers for the year and set the date of Thursday, Oct. 10, for its annual reception and initiation of new members. The reception will take place in the library of the college hall.

A gold dish, painted by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, was presented Mrs. Morrison from the Daughters, and before the presentation, a bill-fold, edged in gilt, to Mr. Morrison from the Sons.

Old-fashioned lamps had been brought out to decorate the tables, and Lloyd Best played a group of old-time songs.

Mary Stoddard Kissing In-Laws Is Objectionable Practice for Bride of Year-and-a-Half

By MARY STODDARD This is the season for unusual problem letters, it seems. They arrive in swift succession.

Today's most unusual letter is presented by a young wife who is confronted with kissing her in-laws every time she turns a corner, so to speak.

She wasn't brought up in an osculating family and she detests this new duty heartily and wants to know how she can avoid it without incurring the enmity of her in-laws.

Her letter follows:

Dear Miss Stoddard: I have never written you before, but I read your column daily. You and your readers seem to find a happy solution for every problem however difficult, so I write in the hope you can solve mine.

This has nothing to do with girl friends or boy friends (but kisses from my father and mother-in-law.)

Every time I meet them they kiss me even if I meet them twice a day they must kiss "hello" and "good-bye." Is there any sense in that?

First of all they are both fleshy and you know fleshy people as a rule perspire a good deal. This is especially true of my father-in-law. When he kisses me his face is sticky and I actually have to wipe my mouth and face with my handkerchief. It makes me disgusted and I'm beginning to hate to see them. I stay away from their house as long as possible.

Kissing Toothless Mouth Just a short time ago my father-in-law had to have his teeth extracted and even then he insisted on kissing me. When I turn my head away they say, "What's the matter here, don't you want to kiss me?"

My husband and I meet them at lots of parties and there before everyone I have to be kissed. It just ruins the evening. Even on the street in any public place, it means kissing all around. It embarrasses me.

Maybe you think I'm terribly silly, but I can't help feeling this way. My husband says he doesn't blame me. He doesn't like all that kissing either.

My folks do not kiss hardly ever and I am not used to it. I seldom ever kiss my own mother and then only on the cheek. There are so many other ways of greeting or showing affection.

I Like Them I like my father and mother-in-law very much. They have been very nice to me and never have interfered in any way since we have been married which has been a year. Their kissing is the only objection I have to them.

It's just ruining everything. Maybe you can offer some way of letting them know kissing is a very disgusting and unsanitary way of showing affection. Thanks. UNHAPPY D-I-L.

Why not be as frank to your in-laws as you have to us? Evidently they are kindly, well-meaning folks and understanding with all. Don't you suppose you will hurt them much more deeply by avoiding them than by coming right out and bringing the issue to a close?

It seems to me your husband might explain to them in a kindly manner that you were not brought up to show your affection in this manner and that consequently you cannot appreciate it. He can take his sweet old mother in his arms and tell her in such a nice way that it will not hurt her feelings.

Or, if you were but a bit more brave, you could do the same thing. That's the only solution to your problem and it's strictly up to you.

THREE PARTIES FEATURE BRIDGE AS ENTERTAINMENT

Three informal social affairs given in the past week in Garden Grove have had bridge play as their featured entertainment.

The party at which Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reafsnider were hosts also included a buffet supper. Bridge prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. Al Bradley of Santa Ana, Dr. J. C. Kraushaar and Mrs. Kraushaar, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Edwards, Los Angeles. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reafsnider, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Wilkinson.

Friends entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell were Mr. and Mrs. A. Eidelson, Dr. J. C. Kraushaar and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reafsnider. High score prizes were taken by Mrs. Eidelson and Dr. Kraushaar. A two-course supper was served at a late hour.

For the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Emley, Mr. and Mrs. A. Eidelson and Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright Smith won prizes. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Goddard and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell. Mrs. Emley served refreshments at the close of the games.

SANTA ANANS ATTEND HI-JINX

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stark, Elmer Eggers and Miss Helen Drinkwater of Santa Ana were among the spectators at the annual hi-jinx of the telephone company last Saturday evening in the Hollywood American Legion stadium.

Open House Planned By Workers

Friday will be open house day for the Community Chest, Mrs. Edward M. Hall, general chairman of the open house, announced today.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, J. B. Tucker will talk for the D. A. V. in the Veterans hall. The Rev. A. E. Kelly is arranging for a speaker from the Ruth Home.

From 3 to 4 o'clock the Salvation Army will hold open house. It will also be open throughout the evening.

The Y. W. C. A. will be at home from 4 to 5 o'clock and in the evening. At 4:15 o'clock a Girl Scout program will be given. Tea will be served. Mrs. Cotton Mather, chairman, will work with Mesdames Ernest Winbigler, Nat Neff, Mark Lacy, C. G. Dowds and Walter Spicer.

At 7:30 o'clock, in Birch park, the Boy Scouts will receive their friends. Awards will be given in a recent essay contest. Afterward, the Y. M. C. A. will have open house and an athletic exhibit.

TUX'N GOWN FIRST DANCE DATE SET

Saturday evening, Nov. 2, in the Santa Ana Country clubhouse, the first fall Tux and Gown dance will be given, the club board of directors decided last evening in the home of Mrs. Robert Guild, South Broadway.

Membership dues letters will be sent out this week and dues must be paid by Oct. 20, it was said.

Hume West was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Loretta Spangler's resignation as secretary-treasurer.

Other directors are Misses Nan and Lolita Mead, Florence Brownridge and Mary Saffley, Mrs. Keller Watson, Jr. and Dick Ewert.

'If In Doubt'

W. E.—At a wedding reception the main point is to be brief in your conversation with the bride couple in order not to keep those who follow you waiting.

TIN-BACKED MARKERS

The tin-backed markers placed by commercial laundries on such articles as washcloths or lingerie, often may seem an annoyance to laundry patrons, but you can turn them into a convenience. Separate the marked cloth from the tin back and sew it to the laundered article, as one would attach a name-tag. When the laundry does place another on an article already marked, the "tape" part of the extra marker is dropped into the sewing machine drawer to be used on some article sent to the laundry for the first time.

To clean paint, take two ounces of washing soda and place in a pint of warm water. Then wash your paint and afterward give it a final washing in cold, clear water—not too cold.

HAPPY DAYS HERE FOR BUILDING INDUSTRY

SURVEY SHOWS MANY HOMES ARE UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Greatest Activity Appears to Be in North Park Boulevard Section of City; 11 of the New Houses Represent $60,000 Investment

Happy days are here again for the building industry, according to the first tabulation of a building survey being conducted in Santa Ana by The Journal.

The preliminary check revealed that 11 homes either under construction or recently completed represent a total investment of approximately $60,000, with only a small section of the city covered. Business buildings and downtown construction is not being considered.

North Park boulevard reveals the greatest activity of any one section in the city. In two blocks on that boulevard new homes representing a total value of $27,000 have either been recently completed or are under construction.

Rogers Building Two

Two houses, with a total valuation of $11,000 are under construction by Emmett C. Rogers. One of them is for himself and the other is being built for E. L. McKamy, Santa Ana businessman.

The house under construction for Mr. McKamy at 2512 North Park boulevard will cost approximately $5000 when completed and is a seven-room stucco structure of the early California type. According to workmen in charge of construction the house will be ready for occupancy early in October. Plans have not been completed for landscaping the property.

In the next block, south, at 2460 North Park boulevard, Mr. Rogers, the contractor in charge of construction, is building a $6000 home for himself and family. This is an eight-room Monterey type house combining brick, frame and stucco in the style home that is typical of the hospitable days of Old California. Designed to take every advantage of a triangular lot, the house gives an impression of spaciousness that is enhanced with the Monterey veranda facing North Park and entry doors on four sides of the home. Landscaping in keeping with the type of home will be started when construction has been completed.

Hasenjaeger In New Home

A. C. Hasenjaeger of the Commercial National bank, has recently moved into his seven-room early California type stucco at 2519 North Park boulevard and already has a lawn and shrubbery.

showing a substantial growth. This home represents an investment of approximately $4000 for construction.

Two other houses in the block, constructed for sale, have been completed and one is rented. Each house represents approximately $6000 for construction. One of the properties, at 2511 North Park, is a seven-room semi-colonial house of brick and stucco construction. The other, located at 2521 North Park boulevard, is a seven-room stucco house.

The new eight-room home of Dr. J. M. Bullitt, now under construction at 1917 Heliotrope drive, when completed will represent an investment of approximately $8500, according to Dr. Bullitt. Of early Normandy type construction, the outside of the house, which will be one of the show places of the city when completed, offers an artistic combination of stucco, stone and rustic timber. It was designed by H. C. Nordstrom of the Santa Ana Lumber company.

A two-story structure, the house will have three guest rooms, a master bedroom and three baths on the second floor. On the first floor the sunken living room, dining room and den-studio will be paneled with mahogany.

Other Structures

Forrest H. Campbell has recently completed and moved into a six-room Spanish type stucco home at 1105 North Baker street. Of grey stucco, topped by a red tile roof, the house, surrounded by lawns and shrubbery, is one of the colorful and artistic homes of the street. Its construction cost $4000.

Another Spanish type, seven-room home has recently been completed at 2128 Greenleaf street by Jules Markel at a cost of $4000. A. W. Foster has completed a $4000 semi-English, tan stucco seven-room cottage at 1129 South Birch street, and a six-room stucco home has recently been completed at a cost of $4000 by H. B. Henderson at 1117 South Parton.

A two-story six-room frame dwelling is under construction at 1522 North Flower street for Miss Orma Ross. The house is being built on the front of the property with Miss Ross making her home in the small cottage at the rear of the lot while construction is under way.

OPENING UNSET SCHOOL TO USE FOR MUSEUM 'W' FACILITIES

Historical material is still coming into the Bowers Memorial museum and it is being classified and catalogued in preparation for the opening of the building, Mrs. F. E. Coulter, curator, said today. There will be enough material so that exhibits can be changed from time to time, she said.

The museum management is awaiting word from the Works Progress Administration of final approval of a project which will put the museum in shape for opening. The work of building display cases and making other necessary changes was started under the State Emergency Relief administration, but its projects were shut down several weeks ago. The WPA is expected to take them over.

It will be impossible to set even a tentative date for opening the museum until approval of its project is received from the WPA, Mrs. Coulter said.

The board of education last night agreed to sign a contract with Y. M. C. A. officials, making it possible for junior college students to have the use of Y. M. C. A. grounds and gymnasium facilities.

It was specified in the contract that one of the first steps in making the grounds usable would be the resurfacing with crushed gravel of that portion now covered with concrete. This particular area, at the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building, will be used for girls' physical education classes.

The gymnasium will be made available for basketball practice, and also will be used for other school functions. The east lobby of the building itself will also be turned over to the junior college. The contract is for 10 months, and provides that the board of education shall pay the Y. M. C. A. 60 cents per month per unit of daily attendance.

SELLS TIRES ON BUDGET PLAN

The Jerry Hall Tire service announces a fall tire budget plan, which requires no money down, and adds to the attractiveness of the offer by making an allowance on worn tires.

Worn tires should be discarded because they are unsafe for use during the fall and winter season. In fact, tire men say bald or thin tires are a risk all the time, not only to the driver but to the highway travel in general. This view has recently been taken by the appellate court, which holds a motorist liable for arrest if he is using worn tires which involve the safety of the public.

Mr. Hall says motorists who do not have the money need not run on unsafe tires as his budget plan, formulated by the United States Tire company, provides for the purchase on easy terms. It is much better to be safe than sorry, added Mr. Hall.

RELIEF FORDER HITS LAZINESS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1. (AP)—Roy W. Pilling, county SERA director, today said that he had been ordered by Miss Emily Woolen, assistant state SERA administrator, to announce that relief clients who refuse to accept jobs with the Works Progress Administration will be dropped from the relief rolls.

URGENT FREQUENT NUT HARVEST

Farm Advisor Harold Wahlberg today advised walnut growers to harvest their crop promptly and frequently to preserve the best condition as soon as the husk cracks, he said. The sooner it is removed from the dampness of the husk the less susceptible it will be to development of mold fungus and other deterioration, he explained.

Mr. Wahlberg said that experiments have shown definite lowering of grades where nuts were not picked with reasonable promptness.

Harvesting of walnuts is under way on between 7000 and 8,000 acres of orchards. The condition and quality of the crop is generally good in all sections of this district, the farm advisor said.

POULTRY BULLETIN OUT

Copies of "Poultry Feeding Principles and Practice," by W. F. Holst and W. E. Newlin, revised and brought up to date by H. J. Almquist and T. H. Jukes, are available at the farm advisor's office, Assistant Farm Advisor W. M. Cory said today.

LEGION HEAD DIES

PASADENA, Oct. 1. (AP)—Alfred E. Owen, 41, California commander of the Canadian Legion, died Monday in a local hospital where he underwent an emergency operation 10 days ago.

Art objects, block prints and materials were displayed. Miss Hynes explained the most pleasing effect to be gained by the use of these and by using correct color combinations.

Distinctive Homes

Are made possible through the combined effort of the owner and builder. Let us share with you this pleasure as quality homes most naturally attract quality owners. Even though the home may be simple in design and low in cost it still possesses that charm which makes living the richer, and financed through Title 2, the Government way, your payments are like rent which is surely worth your investigation. Again prices are on the up-grade, meaning a delay increases your costs.

BUILDING SITES ARE LOW

Floral Park possesses that home atmosphere which appeals. Select your choice.

SUBURBAN HOME SITES

Are possible now which includes every convenience plus ample room to produce all table supplies, at a price as low as $700, restricted to protect the investment.

GREAT FUN

WE HOPE there will be no such aftermath of the water bond election as there is of the school bond election.

It came just as we feared. Our children must suffer for the indifference of voters.

The board of education, refusing longer to assume personal responsibility for the lives of students housed in buildings declared unsafe, last night ordered them vacated. This means there will be a fine picture for the chamber of commerce very soon—a picture of Santa Ana's high school students going to school in tents and studying their lessons in parked automobiles. It will be great fun.

THE WEST'S GIRL SHORTAGE

THE WEST still is a man's country—and maybe that's what's the matter with it, or what makes it great, depending upon your way of thought.

In eight far western states today, there are 500,000 more men than women. The discrepancy in the sexes ranges from Nevada, where there are 140 men to every 100 women, to California, where the ratio is 108 to 100. Other ratios are: Washington, 112 to 100; Oregon, 110 to 100; Wyoming, 123 to 100; Montana, 120 to 100; Arizona, 113 to 100, and Idaho, 114 to 100.

In 11 states, mostly in the South, there are fewer men than women. In the rest, the sexes balance fairly evenly, although the ratio for the whole nation is 102.5 women to every 100 men.

In the West, thousands of men in every state are doomed to what is called "single blessedness." In the South, many women are similarly debarred from marriage, owing to a lack of available men. Perhaps this should not be made public, because it is likely to start something—probably a new Marriage Adjustment administration, to shift unmarried girls out west in wholesale lots.

In time, of course, nature will even things up. Meanwhile, no great harm seems done by the unbalance.

THE DESERT-CONQUERORS

THE League of Nations offers Mussolini parts of Ethiopia in the hope he will be satisfied and call off his private war. Il Duce scorns the offer.

"I am not," he replies, "a collector of deserts." If he has time, Signor Mussolini might read of the achievements of a small band of North Europeans who, some years ago, collected a few deserts, wildernesses, waste places and rocky, windswept hills and turned out, a century later, to have created the United States of America, moderately prosperous and said by some to be the greatest nation in the world.

America exists today, not because it was a great lush tract of fertile land, needing little exertion to make it produce, but because huge sections of it were precisely the opposite.

It was because the pioneers had to fight, and were able to fight, and did fight, that the United States flourishes today.

If Mussolini wants his nation to be great, he should look around and discover what made other nations great. He will discover that, usually it was the taking on of "impossible" jobs, the taming of "impossible" lands, the surmounting of "impossible" obstacles.

National progress is made by men, not by territory. Men are made not by obstacle-dodging, but by obstacle-conquering.

If Mussolini would collect a few deserts, and conquer them, the world might forgive even his lust for conquest. And he would create, in his stride, one of the world's great nations.

A porter in New York who won a $20,000 contest says, "I'm going out to see things—the movies, a couple of night clubs, the racetrack and a party for the boys. But I won't give up my job." He'll probably be fired.

SAN JUAN BAUTISTA

NO BETTER job has been done by the state park commission than its acquiring for preservation the plaza and the old buildings surrounding it at San Juan in San Benito county.

The Castro house on the Plaza is one of the finest, if not the finest, of the extant adobes, and the old Plaza hotel adjoining gives the state an entire block that remains as it was in the days before Fremont. Included in the acquisition are those adobes and the Cannetta house adjoining the plaza on the south, opposite the old Mission.

No California town is richer in present charm or in historical association than San Juan, dreaming on its plateau. Helen Hunt Jackson lived there and absorbed some of the atmosphere for "Ramona." After the Americans came the town was settled largely by southerners, who organized one of the first Masonic lodges in the state and later contributed one famous general and many soldiers to the Confederate army. Until the extension southward of the Southern Pacific, in the early seventies, it was an important trading point. Then it made the mistake of refusing land to the advancing railroad and was left stranded as the rails passed to the northward on their way to Salinas. That circumstance doomed it commercially but kept it as a museum of the past.

Sunday the San Juan Plaza and its old adobes were formally taken over by the state with appropriate ceremonies.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Hattie Belle Johnston has become one of New York's most widely traveled ladies.

William Johnston, author and long time editor of the Sunday World, she was for years hostess to her husband's distinguished friends. Their guest book is about the most complete celebrity roll extant.

One met at their informal dinners such literary lights as H. G. Wells, the Williamses, Carolyn Wells, Claire Sheridan, Gelett Burgess, Rebecca West, Arthur Roche, Donn Byrne, Isaac Marcossen, Fannie Hurst along with an assortment of stage stars, magazine editors and book publishers.

Johnston was first to give O. Henry a leg up after the tragic interlude in his life and was one of his most intimate friends. After her husband's passing, Mrs. Johnston with her sister Mrs. Blanche Clark, constant companion in her globe trotting, went on a trip around the world to ease her sorrow.

This was the beginning of a wanderlust that carried her to far flung corners. She was among the pioneers to brave the banditry of the desert in a motor bus to Bagdad. She has been through the lost lands of Alaska and Siberia, the jungles of Africa, everywhere. And is still on the move.

Mrs. Johnston, for instance, as this is written is a beach visitor at Abbazia in the Adriatic where women wear bright green maple leaves over their noses—forming gadgets which fit as slick as a sunbonnet or newly tailored awning. The grotesque effect is impervious to sun and salt water.

Susan Palmer is another heroine of the tea room success stories that include so many educated women. She invested her entire savings in a Rockefeller Center venture when that area looked like ready money for any restaurateur. But along came the depression and the long uphill pull. She managed to hold on and today is turning them away.

A favored alcoholic drink of the summer was the sturdy Tom Collins. Outselling other hot weather libations 5 to 1, cheaper restaurants announced that at 15 cents a copy but in tonier spots were 50 cents. The Tom Collins was a special of the old Astor House bar, near Fulton street, downtown. Jubilee Jim Fiske used to banish the fog of a night out by downing several in a row before breakfast. And Harry Thaw found them bracing after a jangle.

In a later period Joel's Blue Moon cocktail was celebrated among hardy drinkers for potency. The coloring was Prussian blue with a scent of Arcady and the taste of a faded nectar. One, and the uninitiated sat statue-like for an hour or so petrified. Two, and one slipped under the table, out like a light!

One of the theater's long and hectic romances that divided into something rare for a love affair—a beautiful friendship—continues between George White and Ann Pennington. For years one would not go into a show without the other and when White began producing Miss Pennington always landed top billing. Today the early ardor has cooled but their palship is one of the legends of a street tinged with the bitterness of countless wrecked amours. To White, Miss Pennington is "Penny" and to her he is "Swiftly." They keep in constant touch.

Hamish McLaurin picked up a word thither in England recently that's good for a swell setting of the cork-orks on a dull day. The problem—an actual happening in an English class room—is to write the word "had" eleven times in succession and yet, by putting a few words in front and a few behind and using the right punctuation, to have what you have written make sense. Here it is: John, where James had had "had," had had "had." "Had had" had had more weight with the examiners.

Bill Robinson, Harlem's tap dancing Bojangles, picked up a wire-fence fox terrier puppy in a Forty-seventh street dog shop several weeks ago and is working on an experiment that may climax his act with the most sensational finish yet. He is teaching the dog to tap dance, harp, and sing with dancing shoes and swears the pooch has already learned a few steps.

He was a bewildered, ear-cupping old gentleman, trying to stem the avenue traffic in a series of false starts. I took his arm and half way across we both escaped eternity by a whisker under a wrong way taxi. On the opposite curb, he bowed coldly, walked a dozen steps, turned and whined: "You ain't no spryter than I am."

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—If there are such things as ghosts or heavenly spirits, one of them must have been watching the President Monday as he inspected the mightiest dam the world has ever seen—the handiwork this man long ago planned and conceived.

Almost forgotten is Arthur Powell Davis, first father of Boulder dam. Years ago, as chief engineer of the reclamation service and later its director, he planned the great project dedicated yesterday. For years the Davis report was the Bible for the Boulder dam. Then in 1925—six years before the dam was fought through congress—Davis found himself too liberal for the Harding administration and was fired.

He went on to other things, notably the giant Mokelumne river aqueduct which supplies San Francisco and the vicinity with water. But as far as Boulder dam was concerned he was forgotten. Until Secretary of the Interior Ickes remembered, called him back to Washington, gave him a special title in recognition of his services. One month later Davis died.

THREE STEP-FATHERS

THREE others stand alongside A. P. Davis as the fathers of Boulder dam.

They are Senator Hiram Johnson, ex-Congressman Phil Swing of California, and Elwood Mead, who succeeded Davis as director of reclamation.

Mead is now 77 years old. During about 57 of those years he supervised irrigation and reclamation projects in the far west, in Australia, in Palestine, in Austria and Germany, until he became the foremost land settlement authority of his day.

And during the last 20 of those years he has fought the fight of Boulder dam. One arm cut off almost at his shoulder, indefatigable despite his years, Dr. Mead has piercing blue eyes that give only a hint of the fire that burns beneath his mild exterior.

SWING AND JOHNSON

PHIL SWING was elected to congress from San Diego in 1920 on the sole platform of passing the Boulder dam bill. Prior to election he had helped organize the Imperial irrigation district and was one of the greatest irrigation advocates in California.

Boulder dam was approved by congress in 1929. The next term following, Swing was defeated by a Democrat.

But both Swing and Mead would have failed had it not been for the bulldog tenacity of Hiram Johnson.

Johnson introduced the Boulder dam bill in the senate even before Swing was elected to congress. Every session he re-introduced it. Every year he crept closer to his goal.

And if any one individual can rank with Davis as the father of Boulder dam, it is the irascible, bear-tempered, uncompromising, lovable senator from California, who drove to a final conclusion the idea Davis conceived.

ITINERANT AMBASSADOR WHEN the Brazilian ambassador, who beat Roosevelt to Boulder dam by a month, registered at the hotel in Las Vegas, he wrote: "Oswaldo Aranha, 3000 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, D. C."

He wanted to remain incognito, confident that no one in that community of ranchers and construction workers, 2500 miles from Washington, ever had heard of him.

The incognito worked, and he spent the evening making conversation with anyone who would talk to him about the dam, the New Deal, and the desert.

But at breakfast next morning his luck changed. The waitress put a cup of coffee at his right, little book in front of him, and said: "Mr. Ambassador, would you kindly give me your autograph?"

No one in Ambassador Aranha's party has yet been able to figure out how she discovered his identity. But they suspect the chauffeur.

DESPITE the tribute to Boulder dam, the administration for months soft-pedaled the fact that new irrigable land was going to be withheld from cultivation.

Reason for this was the already existing crop surpluses and the attempt by the AAA to reduce or stabilize crop production.

Now, however, this decision has been reversed. Rex Tugwell's Rural Resettlement administration is looking for rich areas where it can re-locate families from impoverished farming areas. It has cast covetous eyes on reclamation areas around Boulder dam.

As a result hundreds of families from northwest drought areas or from worn-out farms in the south and east, may be the first new settlers around the dam.

CONCRETE FACTS

THE dam the President viewed yesterday is the tallest in the world—726 feet. It is also the widest. Even if the dam were laid on its side it would still be the world's tallest. Backed up water from the dam already has created the world's largest artificial lake. Now 85 miles long, eventually it will be 115 miles long and contain 30,000,000 cubic acres of water. . . . Cost of the project will be $165,000,000—to be repaid to the federal government in 50 years.

All available power is already contracted for by the Los Angeles municipal power company and private California interests. . . . Water from the dam will irrigate 2,100,000 acres of land. . . . The dam will also make the lower Colorado navigable and control floods.

PLANT AND BUILDING OF LOS ANGELES TIMES WRECKED EARLY THIS MORNING AND MANY KILLED AND INJURED.

LOS ANGELES.—The building and plant of The Times was completely destroyed by an explosion and fire at 1 a. m. today. Between 15 and 20 employees are dead and missing. The loss is almost half a million. The management charges labor union with the explosion. The alleged charge of dynamite was set off in a blind alley extending into the center of the building.

TUSTIN.—It is urged that Tustin citizens send an exhibit for the Tustin booth at the carnival. W. B. Artz will be at the booth to receive articles and several ladies have volunteered to help. Everything is very quiet here this week, as everyone is very busy harvesting the nuts and all report the crop very light.

Company L, 56 strong, left this afternoon for Camp Atascadero, where they will be in camp 15 days. The boys are in charge of Captain N. A. Ulm. At noon the company took lunch at the Hotel Rossmore.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

Liberty or Death—No Middle Ground

THIS Mooney-Billings farce is an awful bore. For 19 years they have paraded across the front page. Barrels of ink have smeared last detail of the atrocious crime for which they were accused and convicted. Their cases have been reviewed from every possible angle time and again. If they were guilty as long since determined they should have suffered the death penalty pronounced against them.

If they were not guilty they should have been released years ago. There can be no middle ground in this case. There can be no extenuating circumstances to such a brutal crime. Death or liberty, not everlasting agitation, should be their lot. The long-suffering public is entitled to a break in this silly mess.

THE President is beginning his "swing around the circle." He will meet a different reception from that of three years ago. There is a big difference between being the attacker and the attacked. Lambasting Hoover was very simple compared with his present task of placating an irate people, disillusioned, embittered, victimized by years of depression.

Charming manner, pleasant smiles, hearty handshakes will not dissipate mountainous debts, crushing burdens, gloomy outlook for millions of people, who do not

The People

Editor The Journal: Your editorial regarding Japanese trade reminded me of a bit of information perhaps useful. Last week, by accident, I met a former U. S. army engineer, Major O. J. Todd, for the past 16 years in charge of flood control, road building, famine relief and other forms of conservation work in China. He has worked in every province, has traveled as high as 25,000 miles in a year (not struttily, but constructively), employed a total of nearly half a million workers in enterprises intended to help the Chinese to help themselves.

He is able to feel friendly toward Chinese efforts to solve problems, without being compelled to hate Japan. In fact, he says America needs to wake up and understand both countries, and to work scientifically toward higher living standards (plus lower exploitation encouragement) in both countries. That is a clue to his educational, scientific, non-partisan, impersonal view of giving our own Constitution's "common defense" principle a chance to go to work.

Major Todd told me more about the Tennessee Valley enterprise nature and needs in 10 minutes than 10 political trickery-trusters or boom-ballyhoos could tell (truthfully or usefully) in 10 months, without doing a heap better studying than they have been in the habit of doing. He bases brief saying upon an abundance of seeing.

If I have a chance to reach Major Todd with your editorial before he leaves California on the thirtieth for his return to China to dig into his share of world resources conservation for building up world citizenship, I'll send it along as a souvenir.

Appreciatively, H. G. HEDDEN.

There's a new desk arrangement at the telephone office. It was made without consulting me, which in the beginning was an unpardonable sin. And then the desks are scattered so that I asked every girl in the office where I wanted to go and how to arrive. Understand the arrangement is quite satisfactory to the management so that let's me in and out—as usual.

My friend Dr. Wayneck wants to talk to me about the orange industry. I'm in a receptive mood. However, instead of conversation I must prefer to have cash. It takes it these days to get by with an orange grove, but I still believe it's a much better industry than its returns for the last few years indicate.

There was one of those "bring something" lunches at a certain church yesterday, and it was suggested that my absence would be satisfactory, inasmuch as there would be more salads than solids. It was o. k. with me. No personal appearance.

Can't go any place but what the water problem is the topic. Tried to get away from it Monday and went to Anaheim for lunch, only to encounter Supervisors Willard Smith and LeRoy Lyon, who presented the Orange county flood control problem, and then darned if they weren't followed by a speaker from the Metropolitan Water District who illustrated his remarks with sound pictures of the aqueduct, which showed the path water would travel about 342 miles, to get into Southern California. If this doggone thing keeps up longer some one is going to ask me to take a bath.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

About this time of the year walnut trees get the palsy. If you are a skeptic ask Herb Allen. Sunday he tried out that old theory, "The better the day the better the deed," and got a rap on the nose for his faith. He has the most playful walnut tree. Herb went fishing for walnuts. Took a long pole and reached into the high places for a nice green one. It was the most accommodating "on the tree. It had that personal touch, and followed the pole right down to a point where it connected with Herb's nose. It only took one experience to convince him that the better the day the worse the result.

Most of the homes now being built let more light into them. The time has passed when any one is afraid to live in a glass house. The nudists are making some progress, after all.

Jules Markel calls me to the curb to tell me a fumigated story. You know the kind, one that is told differently from the way you first heard it. Oh, well, never mind. Jules started the introduction, and is interrupted by Art McFadden, who tried to squeeze into a parking stall next to Markel. He got the car in and then couldn't get himself out. So he backs the car into the street, after letting the fellow on the blind side know that there wasn't enough room. Total damage: Incomplete story, mental agitation, and disappointment because the fellow who writes this junk escaped.

Several automobile dealers have called my attention to the new 1936 models. It was nice of them not to say anything about the model I am now using.

Those fellows who drive out of alleys without sounding the horn disregard the ordinary rules of safety, and the ones who come out of the alley sounding the horn at the same time you want to get across scare the life out of you, so what can the poor pedestrian do except favor a movement to do away with all alleys.

My contact with Republicans so far fail to discover any invitations to accompany the President to San Diego. He missed a good chance. Carl Mock comes in to tell me that a group of Santa Ana realtors have made boat reservations for San Francisco, where the California Real Estate association is to hold a convention, and still there are skeptics who tell me that the real estate men won't take water.
